RLTP Announces New Director for their New Play Workshop! Now accepting submissions for 2008!

Buffalo, NY – RLTP is proud and excited to have award-winning playwright Susan Anner join the RLTP staff!

Susan Anner's work has been performed in New York, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, and Washington, D.C. Her most recent play, "Letters to The World," was produced last summer as part of The Infringement Festival in Buffalo. She has also directed plays in area theatres and at UB where she teaches Playwriting, Acting, and Performance Appreciation.

RLTP's New Play Workshop is their training ground for future playwrights; it provides the local theatre community and the world with the "next generation" of playwrights from Western New York. The New Play Workshop, a program under the supervision of Workshop Director Susan Anner and Resident Playwright Jon Elston, is dedicated to supporting playwrights in development of scripts with strong production and performance values.

Over the course of the year, playwrights will write and hone their scripts. The NPW then presents readings of these new scripts to the public. These readings team the playwrights with some of WNY's leading talent and tests the audience-readiness of these new plays.

RLTP is presently accepting submissions for our 2008 New Play Workshop. Deadline is December 20th; the NPW begins in January. There is no fee. Send a 20 page excerpt of a full-length draft with a synopsis and playwright resume/bio to:
